

PRIVACY POLICY

Team Computing is a privately owned Australian computer hardware and software company specialising in the IBM System i, System x, as well as PCs, systems, software and security. We offer complete IT solutions covering ERP, EFT, CRM, and High Availability. Our skills range from tailored software projects through to complex network infrastructures.

At Team Computing we are committed to protecting your personal information and only handle it in accordance with the current Australian Privacy Act.

The personal information we collect from you (such as name, position, email) is used to maintain our working relationship with you, such as:-

- provide you with products and services
- enable communications for sales, projects and accounting
- keep you informed about relevant products and services via newsletters and direct mail
- invite you to IT events
- send you other company communications

We will always provide an option for you to 'unsubscribe' to any of our marketing activities whether by phone or through an email.

We may need to provide your personal information to companies outside of Team Computing such as:-

- distributors, vendors, and OEMs for licensing and warranty purposes
- contractors, consultants and Team Computing partners where assistance is required for projects or queries
- courier companies for shipment of goods

We will not sell your personal information.

Team Computing will make every effort to keep our records accurate and up to date and would appreciate your assistance with this.

Team uses firewall technology to protect its internal networks and databases which hold your personal information.
